

Code of Conduct

How we work – for everyone at Weyland

Julia Hoffmann · 20 January 2026 · WE-POL-GEN-001

A message from our CEO. At Weyland we build power plants that will run for thirty years and more. The trust of the communities next to them, of our partners and of each other has to last just as long. This Code describes how we earn that trust every day. Read it, live it, and speak up when something does not feel right. – Dr. Amara Okafor

1. Who this Code applies to

The Code applies to all employees, managing directors and temporary staff of Weyland Energy GmbH and its subsidiaries in Germany, the United Kingdom and Denmark. We expect contractors and suppliers to follow equivalent standards – our Supplier Code of Conduct is part of every contract above EUR 25,000.

2. Safety comes first

No schedule, cost saving or weather window is worth an injury. Every employee and contractor has Stop Work Authority: you may – and must – stop any work you believe is unsafe, without fear of blame. The HSE Golden Rules apply on every site, vessel and in every office.

3. Respect and fairness

- We treat everyone with respect – colleagues, contractors, landowners, residents and critics alike.
- We do not tolerate discrimination or harassment based on gender, age, ethnicity, religion, disability, sexual orientation or any other characteristic.
- We make people decisions on merit and pay people fairly for equal work.
- We respect the right to join a trade union and work constructively with the works council.

4. Integrity in business

We win contracts, permits and offtake agreements on the quality of our projects – never through improper advantages. Bribery in any form is prohibited, including facilitation payments. Gifts and hospitality must be modest, transparent and registered in line with the Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy (above EUR 50 registration, above EUR 150 approval).

We follow competition law strictly. In tenders and auctions we never exchange price information with competitors. We comply with sanctions and export control rules and screen counterparties before signing.

5. Conflicts of interest

Declare any situation where your private interests could conflict with Weyland's – for example a family member working for a supplier, a side job with a competitor or an investment in a landowner company. Declarations go to your manager and Legal & Contracts; most conflicts can be managed once they are known.

6. Communities and environment

Our projects change landscapes and seascapes. We consult early and honestly, listen to concerns – from glare and construction traffic to seabirds and harbour porpoises – and explain what we can and cannot change. Community benefit funds are managed independently and published in full. We aim for measurable biodiversity net gain on every onshore site.

7. Information and data

- Protect confidential information – contracts, prices, grid and site data – and share it only with people who need it.
- Use the company's approved file sharing platform for partners; no private cloud accounts or USB sticks for company data.
- Handle personal data in line with the GDPR and our data protection policy.
- Only authorised spokespeople talk to the media or investors. Refer requests to Marketing & Communications or Investor Relations.

8. Company assets

Use company assets – vehicles, tools, laptops, phones, budgets – carefully and for business purposes. Reasonable private use of IT equipment is allowed as described in the IT Acceptable Use Policy.

9. Speaking up

If you see something that breaches this Code, the law or our policies, talk to your manager, HR, Legal or HSE. You can also report anonymously through the whistleblowing channel (web portal or hotline, available 24/7 in English, German and Danish). We investigate every report and protect people who speak up in good faith. Retaliation is a disciplinary offence.

10. Consequences

Breaches of this Code can lead to disciplinary action up to dismissal and, where the law is broken, to civil or criminal proceedings. Managers who ignore breaches are responsible as well.
